

Don't Give Up on Something Amazing

I am a creator. I (like most teens) claim to be an influencer, and I hope it will be my future career. What do I do exactly? Well, I make videos and animations. But what I want to focus on here is the animation part. Now, if you didn't know, animating is A LOT harder than it looks. Time and effort go into it. For me, a smooth 10-second animation can take up to an hour! And sometimes I think, "Man, is it even worth it?" Maybe I should just cut my losses and stop working on my animation. Now I will admit I have done that before. But at other times, I think, "That animation could have been something amazing...." Now I hope you are getting the (rather obvious) metaphor. I quit on something that could have been AMAZING!

I am pro-life because I have learned that when I don't give up on that animation and see what I have created, I smile. After all, the results are so much better than I could imagine. What I'm trying to say here is that I KNOW it is the same thing with a baby. And yes, I know it is a jump from talking about not giving up on making an animation to having a baby, but there are similarities if you think about it. It's hard work. You are not sure how it will turn out. It challenges you. You sometimes don't know if it's worth the sacrifices.

You are scared that others may judge what you have done. Well, you might give up. BUT DON'T! Life is the most amazing gift from God. And, if you say, "No, too much work..." you just rejected a soul from living. And what do we call that when we stop someone's heart? Murder.

One of the MOST selfless things to do is to sacrifice your wants and needs to make someone's life better. People often say, " Well, put yourself in a young girl's shoes. She's 15 and pregnant, alone, and scared. She doesn't want to do this, but she has no choice." WHAT? She has no choice? You ALWAYS have a choice. Now, if you can't raise the child because you are not in the best situation, give the baby to someone who can't have one. It is probably one of the best gifts one can receive. It's also good for the girl to see the joy this new life brings to other people.

Nowadays, so many people think that people are the problem, but I KNOW the world is better with more people in it! People smile and are happy when they look at a baby, just like they do looking at a character moving across a screen. I am pro-life because every life matters... even an unborn one.
