

Why I am Pro-Life

I am pro-life because of this story. There was a woman who was 34 weeks pregnant and in the middle of the night she woke up. The baby was not moving so she got up and moved around and the baby still did not move. She woke up her husband and they decided to call the hospital. The nurse told them to come straight to the Emergency Room. When they got to the ER, the nurse did an ultrasound right away and the baby was still not moving. They saw that the baby was breech and something was wrong! The doctor said they needed to do an emergency C-section to save the baby. The mom was worried and scared because this was her first baby and it was still 6 weeks until her due date.

After the baby was born, she only got to see it once and they took the baby away to the NICU. The baby girl was 4lbs 8oz. The baby was diagnosed with Pierre Robin Sequence which meant that her lower jaw was set back and she also had a cleft palate. She couldn't nurse or eat from a bottle so she needed a G-tube placed in her stomach to feed her. The baby was transferred to a special children's hospital to have surgery on her jaw to move it forward. She had many surgeries, including an eye surgery and surgery to fix her cleft palate.

The thing I like about this story is that the mom could have fallen back to sleep and the baby could have died. She never knew why she woke up that night. And when the baby was born, many doctors warned the parents that the baby might have serious health problems all her life.

I am here today to tell you that I am pro-life from the moment of conception because I am the baby from the story! I came to tell you that those doctors were wrong. I hardly ever get sick. I am strong and I am not afraid to speak up and change the world one mind at a time.
